

Frank G. Folkers Dies At Home In His 84th Year

PRE-EASTER BLIZZARD WREAKS HEAVY DAMAGE, STRANDS MANY TRAVELERS

ABOUT THIS — AND — ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

Economists and politicians express a fear that the United States is heading for overproduction in farm products and manufactured items. And they show their great concern by doing nothing about it.

That, of course, is because we have so many dilantane "statesmen" with sow-eared mentalities.

Millions of persons throughout the world are hungry, going to their death for lack of nourishment. Mothers and fathers look upon their slowly dying, suffering children, with hearts breaking as they, too, slowly and painfully die.

With all the distress, all the suffering, our smug-hearted and empty-headed "statesmen" discuss surpluses and forthcoming dire economic recessions in sopomoric, academic terms and show a total lack of understanding of sound economic possibilities.

They prate of tariffs and parity payments, of guarantees; they wade through the vocabulary of terms they have heard all their lives, but show no actual interest in or understanding of the meaning of these things.

Plans are made for "public works" meaning slow-moving shovels and useless projects, with inadequate earnings—in the days when hard times shall press down upon the country.

And all the time there is a plain, simple, sound economic program awaiting enough public gumption to put it into operation. The fear of lost savings, of lost homes, of hunger automatically would be washed away for the next two hundred years.

Asia's hundreds of millions, Africa's millions, Europe's millions, and our own more than 150 millions offer a market big enough to take everything our factories and our farms can produce through several generations.

We exercise more power than any nation in the world, yet weasel-minded politicians shiver in their worn-out and empty mental boots when the exercise of our great power is mentioned.

By stepping up the earning power of Asia's millions alone we can pay the highest wages in history in our own country and give to every able-bodied man and woman between our two oceans full-time employment in field and factory and office.

How can we expect China, or Burma, or Indo-China, or India to buy our goods when they work for tiny wages? Although we collected taxes on imports, before the war we imported vast quantities of Oriental goods, made by people getting infinitely less than our depression-days WPA pay. They made goods for us, but could buy only a tiny mite of our products because their incomes were so small.

If our tiny-minded politicians, joining with sensible labor leaders if there are any, would use the economic might of the United States to bring other now dependent countries into line and prohibit the import of goods from any country where wages equal to ours are not paid, within a year our farming and manufacturing industries would be at peak production and the feared economic disaster would fade away under the bright sun of plenty and happiness.

Other benefits would ensue. Starvation throughout the world would be almost immediately banished. And our fear of communism would dissipate, since Russia would be compelled to institute a democratic form of government, and Russian people would be released from the bondage under which their masters now keep them.

We can't see our crops, our automobiles, our trains, our watches and all the other things grown and built here to people who make only a few cents a day.

Maybe it is too much to expect government managers to show much sense.

But it is too much to expect the people who will do the suffering under another economic collapse to show some sense?

SALE DATES

March 28—Harry Bettenhausen, Manhattan
March 31—William Daul and Harry Schumacher, Tinley Park
April 3—Alfred Krapf, Green Garden
April 5—DeVries, Blue Island
April 26—Henry Jacob and Geo. F. Bobzin, Green Garden

Beautiful snow brought no joy to thousands of stranded motorists and waiting train passengers last Monday afternoon and night.

Roads throughout southwestern Cook County and throughout Will county were lined with hundreds of automobiles throughout late afternoon and evening. Most stranded cars remained where they were stalled all through the night.

On Wolf road out of Mokena, within a distance of two miles, more than 30 cars were reported stalled, in most instances due to skidding and miring in soft shoulders along the highway.

In Tinley Park, Mokena, Orland Park; New Lenox; Frankfort the story was the same—some walking in long distances in the hope of finding train connections home or accommodations for the night.

Telephone connections between these sections and with Chicago and other points were destroyed, as were telegraph wires. Many schools closed.

Motorists who walked into Tinley Park reported seeing many cars containing women and children stalled along the highway, many being compelled to remain in their cars throughout the night.

Telegraph and telephone poles were blown down, wires broken, and utility workmen worked desperately throughout the night to open communications and remove obstructions to train travel.

All trains ran from one to several hours late. Rock Island trains were reported delayed between Joliet and Chicago by poles blown across tracks. Switches required constant attention because of the piling snow blown into heavy drifts by a wind estimated in this section at 37 miles an hour. In other areas reports indicated wind velocities of more than 60 miles an hour.

Telephone connections were reestablished after a few points Tuesday afternoon, but mostly communities remained isolated.

In Orland Park wires snapped on Beacon street, causing part of the town to be in darkness until after 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Classes in the elementary and high schools were called off for that reason.

CHESTER EBERT MARRIES

DOROTHY HOGER

Miss Dorothy Hoger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hoger of Matteson, and Mr. Chester E. Ebert of Mokena, were married last Saturday evening at 7:30 in Zion Lutheran church in Matteson, with the Rev. H. P. Meyer officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a street length beige suit with brown accessories. Her corsage was of white roses and hyacinths.

The bride's only attendant was her cousin, Mrs. Harry Yunker of Mokena. She wore an aqua suit and her accessories were brown. Her corsage was of red roses and white hyacinths.

Melvin Hoger was the groom's attendant.

The processional and recessional were played by Mr. Wichmann, who also accompanied Mrs. Meyer as she sang "O Perfect Love."

The bride's mother wore navy blue. Her corsage was pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents for about 40 relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ebert are living northeast of Mokena.

OPPORTUNITY FOR

YOUNG MAN

An ambitious youth, high school graduate, can find a position with The News-Bulletin that will provide for a successful future. This young man must want to get ahead and be willing to continue studies while learning the printing and publishing business. This kind of fellow will of necessity be conscientious about his work and make every effort to develop his growing knowledge of this business. Such a young man should write to the Editor, News-Bulletin, Mokena, Ill., telling a lot about himself.

SUGAR WARNING

Warning has been issued to canners that with the validation of 10-pound sugar stamps effective April 1 and July 1 special canning sugar allotments will be ended.

The stamp to be validated April 1 for 10 pounds of sugar is stamp No. 11 in family ration book No. 4.

Spare stamp No. 53 previously validated for five pounds of sugar through April 3, now expires March 31. Spare stamp No. 11 will be good for 10 pounds April 1 through September 30.

The change in stamp value does not mean a sugar "bonus," it has been announced. It does mean that prospects now are that each person will be allotted 35 pounds of sugar in 1947, as against 25 pounds last year.

The change does mean that users must conserve for canning, since there will be no special allotments for this purpose.

Frankfort Folks At Tinley Park Party

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kohlhausen of Frankfort attended a birthday celebration in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Andres, at Tinley Park, Sunday, March 23. Guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bettenhausen and Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Hollstein of Orland, Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Andres, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Jochum and family of Frankfort. Dinner was served by Mrs. Andres at 6 o'clock, and the long table was centered with a cake beautifully decorated and inscribed with "Happy Birthday Dad," the gift of their daughter Ruth, and candles in crystal holders. The evening was spent with various games and then an evening lunch was served before departure of guests.

OWENS' COWS IN TEST

BRATTLEBORO, VT.—A registered Holstein-Friesian cow in the dairy herd owned by Owen Brothers, New Lenox has recently completed a 341-day production record in advance registry test of 462 pounds of butterfat and 13,625 pounds of milk, the Holstein-Friesian Association of America announces. This is more than two and a half times the production of the average dairy cow in the nation.

The cow's official name is Ormsby Waldorf Jolie 2036870. She was milked three times daily and was six years and nine months of age when she began her testing period. Her sire is Sowiscol Triune Prince Waldorf Dot 654019.

Testing was supervised by University of Illinois in cooperation with the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

TO CLOSE GOOD FRIDAY

New Lenox Lumber & Hardware Co. has announced an all-day closing on Good Friday. Lack of connection has made it impossible for the News-Bulletin to secure information on the general closing program.

$10,000 Fire Destroys Large Farm Building

Fire of undetermined origin Tuesday night destroyed the recently remodeled barn on the old Job Sayers farm at 167th and 118th Avenue, near Mokena. Damage is estimated at about $10,000.

Along with the burning of the barn, it is reported that three brood sows and 40 young pigs were destroyed by fire, which occurred between 7 and 8 o'clock.

The farm is occupied by the Paul Whites. The property is said to be owned by George L. Hitz of Beverly Hills.

March

By Elizabeth Bush

Oh, March, why so temperamental
Sometimes laughing, gay and gentle.
Other times you rage and blow
Just for all the world, as tho'
You were mad and surely would
Wreak revenge on all you could?
Now, is that the kind of way
To behave—e'en for a day?
Do you want folks to rejoice
When they cannot hear your voice
And be glad that April's here
With her bright and sunny cheer?

FRANKFORT'S ST. PETER'S PLANS PALM SUNDAY SERVICE

Sunday morning at 10:30 a class of five children will be confirmed in St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed church, Frankfort. The pastor, the Rev. E. Bizer, will have charge of the service. The following are to be confirmed: Bonita Batson, Irma Breyer, Wilbur Schumacher, George Kratzenberg, and John Funk. In the evening at 7:30 the annual confirmation reunion will be held. A musical program is planned, including a solo by Mrs. William Wilson of Chicago. "Where Love Is There God Is," a sound film, will be presented.

Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock our last Lenten Service will be held with Rev. H. Kehle of Grant Park the speaker. Good Friday, 7:30, the annual candle light communion service. Easter morning at 6:30 there will be a Sunrise Easter service and breakfast in charge of the St. Peter's Youth Fellowship. At 10:30 a.m. the regular Easter services with holy communion, with Easter music by the choir.

The Good Friday three hour service will take place at the Methodist church from 12 noon to 3 in the afternoon.

Frankfort F Men To Meet

The F Men's organization of Frankfort township will be held in Frankfort village hall this Friday evening.

EMINENT FRANKFORT CITIZEN BURIED FOLLOWING FUNERAL SERVICES

Blizzard Sidelights

Scene: Mokena's Rock Island depot. Personnel: Persons wanting to go somewhere.

Why didn't they go somewhere? The answer: Because of the beautiful snow.

And in they came—snowbound cars left behind, wondering if the train had gone to Joliet or Chicago. No, no! The train had not gone—didn't go for a long time.

Jolietters got away first. Earlier, however, a deep blast had disappointed many—turned out to be streamliner slowly edging its way through road blocks—red lights. Then, toward Chicago—ah, now I'll get home (Editor writing, please). But alas! it was a "througher" and we all sat down again.

But waiters-on-the-trains had music. It tinkled, or banged, or was just noise. Depended upon the way one looked at it—upon the amount of humor one possessed, or how hungry or tired.

The crossing gate was down (somebody, it is reported; tried to drive through it during the night) and the bell clanged, clanged for hours. But nobody was to blame—just Ole Man Winter spitting out his last (we hope) vengeful spite at us.

Two fellows came in, asking for the police station. Driving a Borden milk truck, been looking for a stranded truck five hours. Afraid of a "ticket" for all-night parking. Their worries eased, they went on the train to Chicago—when it came.

Oh, yes we had no lights in the station, just like many others didn't.

What a beautiful SPRING!

Mokena Basketbballers

The Mokena Alumni Basketbballers ended their regular season last Wednesday evening by dividing a twin bill with Hazelcrest.

The first game saw our Lights defeated by the league-leading team of the lightweight division, Hazelcrest. We maintained a short lead until the last two minutes of play, when Williams, visitor's forward made two sets shots to give his team the victory, 29 to 27.

The final game played in the Mokena school gymnasium went to the Mokena Heavies by defeating the young team of Hazelcrest 54 to 33. Bob Clark of Mokena took scoring honors with 20 points, while Williams of Hazelcrest counted 18. Brilliant defensive play was shown by George Lauffer, "Sparky" Hentsch, and "Schutzie" Mueller.

The teams have been practicing for their first game of the Southwestern Suburban Tournament to be played at Tinley Park this evening. The two teams have chosen New Lenox to be their first victim. The Lights will begin play at 7:15 p.m., while the Heavies play their first game at 9:15. Mokena fans are urged to come on out and follow the local teams throughout the tournament.

BEUTEL COW TESTS HIGH

Bing's Swiss Lady, 80574, a registered Brown Swiss cow owned by George Beutel of Mokena, recently completed a 305-day lactation record on herd test of 14746.2 pounds of milk and 534.45 pounds of fat on twice-a day milking, according to Fred S. Idtse, secretary of the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association, Beloit Wis. This record was made by a six year old.

Oakland Juanita 65976, a registered Brown Swiss cow also owned by Mr. Beutel, recently completed a 305-day lactation record on herd test of 13118.4 pounds of milk, and 510.37 pounds of fat on twice a day milking, the association reports. This record was made by a nine-year-old.

GEORGE M. PELOUBET RITES

HELD IN CHICAGO HEIGHTS

George M. Peloubet, 65, father of Mrs. Mildred Kreml of Mokena, was buried Wednesday in St. John's cemetery following funeral services at West End funeral home, Chicago Heights, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He died last Sunday. Services were conducted by the Rev. William J. Riemann, pastor of St. John's church.

Mr. Peloubet was born in Trenton, N. J., was employed by Montgomery & Company for many years, and in recent years worked for Western Union.

In addition to Mrs. Kreml, survivors are another daughter, Mrs. Marion Tally, and two grandchildren.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT CLOSING

BY 6 FRANKFORT STORES

A group of six stores in Frankfort has decided to continue Wednesday night closing through the month of April. Beginning the first Wednesday in May Wednesday evening opening will be resumed.

The stores are Sangmeister electric shop, Harry Balchowsky department store, Richelieu food shop, Henry Mark hardware store, Frankfort food market, Clover Farm store.

By Mrs. Frank J. Kohlhausen

Funeral services for Frank G. Folkers, 84, one of Frankfort's oldest citizens, were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon of this week at the home of his son, Herbert P. Folkers in Frankfort, the Rev. Erich Bizer, pastor of the Evangelical and Reformed church, officiating.

Several vocal selections were given by Arthur Lambrecht, accompanied at the piano by Miss Lillian Collins. Burial was in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

Mr. Folkers was widely known over the years in this section of Illinois as business man, contractor, telephone line builder, and financier.

He was born at Frankfort August 17, 1863; and spent his entire life in Frankfort.

For many years there were no activities in the community in which he did not take an active part.

He was the oldest member and founder of the firm of Folkers Brothers, (Frank; William; and Peter Folkers.) Their first business enterprise was a meat market which they bought from their father, a pioneer of Frankfort. The market is now being operated by Hilgendorf and Mulderink and has been in continuous operation more than eighty years.

They took an active part in excavating for the double track of the E.J. & E. railroad in the vicinity of Frankfort. He was one of the earliest contractors for the building of gravel roads in and around New Lenox, Frankfort, and Green Garden townships. All the hauling was done by horse-drawn vehicles, and in building these gravel roads he used the first portable gravel crusher powered by a threshing machine engine in this community. When the state engaged in an experiment in using convict labor in building roads, he was in charge of the convict labor camp located a mile east of Frankfort on Sauk Trail. This was later abandoned by the state as impractical.

Folkers Bros. also operated the Frankfort hotel and the Frankfort livery stables.

Built Telephone Lines

Mr. Folkers also constructed all the Interstate Telephone line in Frankfort, Green Garden; Monee; and Peotone townships and operated the Interstate Telephone exchange at Frankfort for many years. When the Illinois Bell Telephone Company acquired the Interstate lines he built the first Bell Telephone trunk line between Joliet and Chicago Heights.

Mr. Folkers financed and built the old Joliet and Southern Interurban line between New Lenox and Matteson. During World War I he was appointed bond chairman and food administrator for the locality. He was also on the committee for the appraisal of the land for its condemnation appointed by the state of Illinois for the Stateville penitentiary. He was instrumental in the organization and operation of Citizens Bank of Frankfort and served as its president for many years.

Mr. Folkers was united in marriage with Martha Bettenhausen August 23, 1894; who died eight years ago.

Mr. Folkers suffered a paralytic stroke in his home Sunday morning, March 15. At this time his speech and left arm were badly affected. This stroke was only one of many previous ones he had had. More than thirty years ago he suffered a skull fracture in which the upper part of the skull was entirely removed and partially put together again.

Surviving, in addition to his son are: Mrs. (Mabel) Ernest Knuteson, Mrs. (Florence) Harold Johnson, of Joliet; six grand children; one brother, William Folkers of Blue Island, and many nieces, nephews and other relatives.

Koch Joins County Health Department

Reinhart W. Koch has been employed by the Will county health department to succeed Robert H. Harneson who resigned to join the state health department last January.

Mr. Koch, formerly of West Orange, N. J., is a graduate of Newark College of Engineering, Newark, N. J. where he received his bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering in 1942. He was a first lieutenant with the sanitary corps of the armed services from 1942 until 1946.

During the past year, Mr. Koch has been attending the school of public health, University of Michigan, where he took advanced training in sanitary engineering. He received his master's degree in public health from the University of Michigan last month. He began his duties with the Will county health department Wednesday, March 19.

QUILT AND HOBBY SHOW

A quilt and hobby show exhibited by Mrs. Kathryn Hamburger of Chicago will be given Tuesday afternoon April 8 at 2 o'clock in the church parlors of St. John's Evangelical church, Mokena. Group 1 of the Women's Guild is sponsoring this exhibit. Anyone who wishes to exhibit quilts are cordially invited to display them at this time.

Amateur Show Cast Set; Reserved Seats Announced

Through a process of screening, directors of the second annual amateur show to be held in Tinley Park April 12 and 19 announce that a top-flight group of performers and artists have been selected to present the two performances.

The shows are set for presentation in Tinley Park school auditorium. Auditions have been closed. Talent ranges from little tots to old people.

Youngest of the "little tot" class is announced as three years' old; the oldest in the cast is 75. Everyone was required to prove entertainment ability before being placed in the cast.

Two high-powered and entertaining masters of ceremonies have been secured, Ray Joplin for April 12, when he will entertain with some of his original cartoons, said to provide considerable hilarious fun.

Then, on April 19, Bob Lutz will "master" the party. Provided there are hats around, MC Lutz will, it is said pull out some "makings" for rabbit stew, along with other entertaining magic.

Among the entertainers will be the Tinley Park School Girls Glee Club.

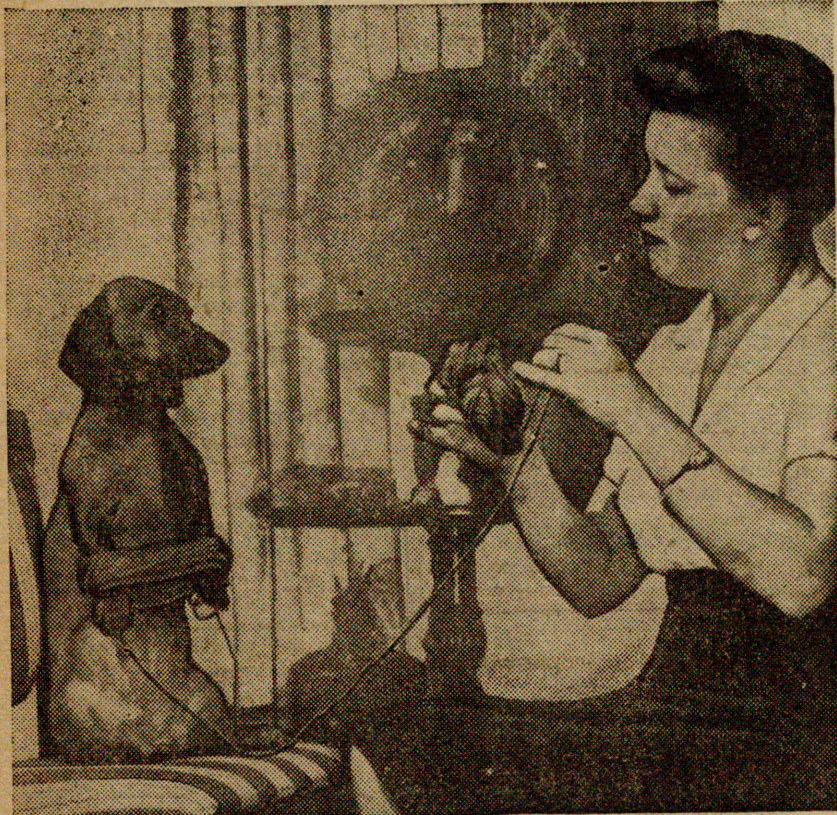

Vocalists and instrumentalists of high merit are announced for both shows, along with "hoofers" who are expected to dazzle with speed and grace. On the evening of April 12, 15 acts will be judged for reappearance April 19, when prizes will be awarded.

ARMY GUINEA PIG REGIMENT AT FORT KNOX . . . More than 650 boys, under 19 years of age, from all parts of the country are volunteers at Fort Knox, Ky., in an experimental universal military training program. Members of the unit will be trained for one year along lines of the war department's proposed plan for universal training. Recruits will receive a course which couples military training with civilian supervision and discipline.

BLOWN FROM AIRLINER . . . This photodiagram shows how George W. Hart, Sag Harbor, N. Y., was blown from Constellation airliner on which he was a member of the crew. When 19,000 feet over Atlantic, Hart was blown into space when the astrodome plastic bubble, from which the navigator takes star sightings for navigation, broke when airliner was 500 miles from Newfoundland, bound from New York to Paris.

MOTHER'S HELPER . . . Because she expects a blessed event in the near future, "Gretchen," intelligent dachshund owned by Mrs. Karl Kaesmeier, Leetsdale, Pa., is rushing the job of preparing tiny garments. "Gretchen" can't handle the needles very well, but she does a swell job of holding the skein.

NEW BREAD LINE . . . When route salesmen went out on strike in Milwaukee recently the Omar bakery gave away $15,800 worth of bakery goods rather than see it spoil. Pickets, policemen, housewives and children fell in line to receive their free share of the bakery goods. By late morning more than 1,800 persons had lined up for the free handout.

OH HUM! . . . Gov. Ingram M. Stainback of Hawaii told congress that the island territory is subject to taxation without representation. The Hawaiian governor appeared before the house public lands committee.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Hospital Services

A new medical service in seven centers has been established by Veterans' administration for treatment of spinal cord injuries. These paraplegic centers are now in operation in VA hospitals at Framingham, Mass.; Memphis, Tenn.; Van Nuys, Calif.; Staten Island, N. Y.; Richmond, Va.; the Bronx, N. Y., and at Hines in Chicago.

Because of a general shortage of doctors, physical therapists and others qualified to treat paraplegics, VA personnel skilled in this field have been assembled at the seven centrally located hospitals over the country. This will permit veterans to receive the proper treatment needed for their rehabilitation and at the same time to be as close to their homes as possible.

Until recently most spinal cord injury cases were doomed to a life of inactivity, and in many cases death resulted. Under modern treatment, however, many paraplegics are able to lead active, productive lives. Treatment in these cases includes the services of neurologist, neurosurgeon, psychiatrist, doctor of physical medicine, physical therapist, occupational therapist, corrective physical rehabilitation officer, educational training officer, prevocational shop supervisor, social worker and nurses. There are approximately 1,200 veteran-patients suffering from injuries to the spinal cord and the number is expected to reach about 2,000 eventually.

Questions and Answers

Q. Our son served four years in the navy and while at this work he fell across a gun mount and cut a gash in his head which left a very large bump. This bump does not seem to bother him now, but may in later years. It took quite a few stitches to sew up his head. Now he is discharged and in such a hurry to get home he was afraid he would have to stay longer if he put in for this accident. So after he got out, his boy friend told him he should have put in for it and could perhaps draw a small monthly pension. Now what we are wondering is, is it too late to put in for the accident and to whom should he apply?—Mrs. S. C. B., Litchfield, Neb.

A. The only suggestion we can make is to have your son go to the nearest office of Veterans' administration, explain the situation and ask for a disability rating. If he is entitled to such a rating, VA will take care of the rest.

Q. My son enlisted in the army as an X-ray technician. He went overseas and right after the invasion he was wounded and died two days later. It was in France somewhere. I never found out where. His serial number was 47433002. I have written two different officers and they have never told me anything about him. Now what I want to know is who could I write to to find out something about his death and what he was doing when it happened? I want his body to be brought back here to be with the family when it can be moved. It seems to me his records should be there in Washington.—Mrs. K. H., McGregor, Iowa.

A. Suggest you write to Memorial Division, Office of Quartermaster General, War Department, Washington 25, D. C., giving your son's full name and serial number, his point of enlistment and his outfit, if you know.

Q. I am a veteran and am self-employed. If I draw the self-employment pay which is offered veterans will this amount be deducted from the bonus I am entitled to receive later?—R. E. B., Sikeston, Mo.

A. There has been no provision for a bonus to World War II veterans as yet. However, your adjusted compensation as self-employed would not be deducted from any future bonus voted by congress.

Q. I would like to know what Sec. I, AR615-361 means on my discharge?—L. C. G., Britt, Iowa.

A. This section refers generally to medical disability. It is known as a certificate of disability for discharge.

Q. I am a veteran of World War II and about four weeks ago I had a major operation by a civilian doctor. Now what I would like to know is, would I be entitled to collect any money from the government to pay for this operation?—H. H. S., Parks, Neb.

A. If this operation was an emergency operation and due to service-connected injury or disease, the chances are you could obtain reimbursement from Veterans' administration. Would suggest that you contact your nearest Veterans' administration office.

BASEBALL owners, managers, players and writers often can be wrong. So can baseball fans—who don't like to admit it.

Here is a letter from an ardent Ozark country rooster:

"Why don't you fellows admit that all the great ball players of modern time come from the Ozark country, where they can run and throw? I mean Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas? I mean such fellows as Dean, Hubbell, Pepper Martin, Warneke and others. Also this Cardinal ball club that whipped the eastern Dodgers and the eastern Red Sox last year? We have the legs and arms in this rugged country that the East doesn't have."

In mingling and hanging around with the Cardinals, one of our favorite ball clubs, we began a slight check-up.

In a vague way, we also had the idea that this fast-running, hard-throwing, hustling team was a product of the cottonwood trail, the country where men have arms and legs and take desperate chances. But we ran across a different answer in checking with the world's champions.

For example—there was Enos Bradsher ("Country") Slaughter, a ball player as typical of Cardinal strength as any man you can find—a ball player with a great arm and a pair of fast-flying legs. "Country" Slaughter should have been a typical Ozarkian. But we discovered that Slaughter came from Roxboro, N. C., and he got his start in the South Atlantic league with Columbus, Ga.

Well, what about George John ("Whitey") Kurowski, as good a third baseman as you'll meet today? "Whitey" Kurowski came from Reading, Pa., playing with Portsmouth in the Middle Atlantic league, where he hit only .386.

Come From Everywhere

Marty Marion certainly must be a member of the cottonwood trail. But we find that Marty came from Richburg, S. C., before moving to Rochester for his baseball education. Marty was with Rochester three years before they decided he could handle an infield rap.

But what about Stanley Frank Musial, possibly the best all-around ball player in the game? Musial reports from Donora, Pa., and almost his entire early career was along the Atlantic seaboard, until he came to the Cardinals six years ago.

Terry Moore came up from Memphis, Howie Pollet from New Orleans. Schoendienst worked in the East. Johnny Beasley is from Tennessee, the city being Nashville.

The Ozark landscape certainly has sent in its share of great ball players. More than its share.

It is surprising how many fans think of these hard-running, hard-throwing, hard-fighting Cardinals as a rather rough bunch from the Ozark landscape. But this Cardinal camp is one of the quietest and most orderly I have seen. They are all well-dressed, well-behaved, rather soft-voiced and always friendly.

Lon an Ozark Boy

I still miss my old tobacco-chewing pal, Lon Warneke, who could wash down a big hunk of tobacco with a bottle of beer. Lon, from Mt. Ida, Ark., held the all-around, tobacco-chewing championship. He has no successor on the Cardinals today.

The Cardinals' manager, Eddie Dyer, is probably best described as the exact opposite of Leo Durocher, his hottest rival, another great manager. Dyer is a graduate of Rice institute in Texas, one of the leading institutions of learning in this country. The rumor is that he was a Phi Beta Kappa. He was also a football star, one of the best in Texas in his time. He is a quiet, soft-spoken Texan, who has few arguments with umpires or anyone else.

But don't forget that he knows his trade. As a minor league manager in the Cardinal farm system, he kept sending along ballplayers who made good.

Dyer had retired from baseball to work in the oil business with his two brothers in Houston, Tex., when Sam Breadon sent for him to fill in for Billy Southworth.

As easy going as Dyer seems to be, there is nothing soft about him. You don't get to be the best blocking back in Texas football if you're on the soft side. Dyer has the respect and affection of his squad.

"My team wants to play winning baseball," he told me. "I don't have to watch their hours. They love the game and like to win. They keep in shape. I don't want anyone around I have to watch. Just give me men like Terry Moore, Marty Marion, Stan Musial, "Country" Slaughter, "Whitey" Kurowski, "Red" Munger, Howie Pollet and a few more like these, and I don't have to worry. Whatever happens, I know they are giving the team 100 per cent of all they have."

That seemed to be quite enough in 1946. Ask the Red Sox.

Miles NERVINE

LAST LOVER

By Helen Topping Miller

Jill McFarlane, whose father, Richard, disappeared in World War I, is in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. Her brother, Ric, becomes involved with Sandra Calvert, a divorcee. Jill is thrown from a horse and during her absence Richard returns, telling her mother, Julia, that he is now Captain Mackey. He sees Ric at camp and later threatens Sandra, but the two marry anyway. Richard has Ric transferred and Sandra arrives at the farm to live. Jill and her grandfather, John I., try to make things so uncomfortable for the woman that she will not stay. She starts Julia by recognizing the picture of Richard in Jill's room as that of Captain Mackey as a young man.

CHAPTER XVII

"I haven't even dared let myself think since Ric's letter came. And there's another danger, Dave. This woman knows Richard. She knew him in Hawaii. He telephoned last night. He told me that he had tried to prevent this marriage by having Ric sent away, but that they were too quick for him."

"So Ric knows about his father?"

"No, Ric doesn't know. Richard didn't tell him. And Jill doesn't know."

"They'll have to know, Dooley. Surely you can see now that your only protection is the truth?"

"Dave, I can't tell them! I can't make myself do it."

"But Richard is alive! You have a living personality to deal with now, not a shadow, not a memory. I think you're taking an awful chance, Dooley, risking a shock to Jill, much worse than the truth would be. I think you're dead wrong."

Dave steered carefully through the thin traffic on the edge of the town.

"To my mind, the best protection Jill can have is the truth. But I'm not going to argue with you. It's your own problem, you've had the misery of it all these years, you've got the anxiety of it now. You may be able to count on Richard to keep his identity concealed. It's to his own interest, of course. It would be definitely awkward for him if the War Department got wind of it. There are always a few blackbirds in every army, but if they're found out it doesn't go well with them."

"What is a blackbird?"

"A man who gets discharged from a military unit for some reason, or who deserts or leaves his command without complying with regulations, and then enlists somewhere else under an assumed name. That's the spot Richard is in, right now, and he's probably more acutely aware of it, than even you are. I doubt if he'll start anything. He was taking a risk, even to let you know that he was alive. But if this woman knows anything about it, that's another angle and a bad one."

"She saw Richard's picture in Jill's room and identified it instantly as a picture of Roger Mackey. I could see her mind working. She's a type I've never met before, Dave. I don't know exactly how to deal with her."

"Why on earth did Ric send her to you, anyway?"

"Because he didn't know what else to do with her. He was shipped out suddenly—Richard did that—and I suppose she had no money. There's nothing at all to do, Dave, but wait."

Failed in Her Duty to Ric

"Here's the movie. I suppose we should go in." Julia's voice was weary. "Go in and look at imitation tragedy and forget our own. The sickening thing for me, Dave, is the realization that I must be a very weak person. No strong woman could have muddled up one life as I have muddled mine."

"What did you have to do with it?" Dave demanded, a little angrily. "Did you create any of these circumstances, by any act of your own? You've taken what came with courage and made the best of it. I won't have you blaming yourself."

"But I must be to blame for Ric. A mother has to be to blame, Dave. Your child is given to you—clean, plastic clay, nothing carved upon the surface at all, all new and untried, to make of it what you will. I haven't even a father's influence for an alibi with Ric. I failed somehow to put strength into his spirit, to make him wise enough to judge values, to give him the courage to reject everything that wasn't good and fine. It isn't pleasant to know that you've failed with your only son."

"You're all wrong, Dooley. Any psychologist would tell you how wrong you are. You aren't given a child like a sheet of white paper with nothing at all written upon it. What is born to you is a record, the long scroll scribbled all over with the story of generations of McFarlanes, their weaknesses, their meannesses, their nobility, traits over which you have no control whatever."

"I did have the control of direction. I could have put power behind the weakness and eliminated the meanness and built up what was good, but I didn't. I couldn't somehow ever get near to Ric, Dave. I could only give him love, and he accepted that, but always with that faint tinge of condescension. I suppose it was because he had no father. There was a maleness in Ric that only a father could have touched. I was always less a parent to him than just another woman. By the time he was seven he was treating me with the same sort of casual indulgence that Richard used to have for me. He told me the truth when it suited him, and when he felt the urge to deceive me, it never bothered him for a minute."

"You gave your children two parents, Dooley. Don't forget that."

"Jill said that the other day. And I was always aware of it, with Ric. He has that charm that Richard has, that trick of getting what he wants, of being untouched by the disapproval of other people, a kind of veneer that kept him apart, so that he was himself, complete and just a little arrogant, entirely pleased with himself and slightly amused by all the rest of the world. There's a deadly kind of fascina-

"You may have changed Richard's direction, but you didn't destroy him."

tion about it. It makes you want to break through and make the person who owns it aware of you. Even when I was so furious at Richard Sunday night when he came back, I was feeling that irritation, the impelling to crash through that shell of his, get past that mocking smile, find some vulnerable spot, some place where he could be hurt. Ric's like that, too. Suave and charming, and entirely remote. But I should have done something about that when he was small."

"That very aloofness may save Ric, Dooley," Dave reminded her. "If I'm any judge of human nature this woman he has married won't like it. She'll want to absorb every thought and feeling Ric has, she'll eat him alive the way some spiders devour their mates. Her very lack of reticence and reserve will repel Ric, if it hasn't done that already. She dragged him into this marriage, by some female trick, of course, and a few weeks away from her will cool him down. Very likely he's wondering right now what he saw in her, and how he's going to get out of the mess he's in."

"I think," Julia said, opening the door and gathering up her purse and gloves, "that the McFarlane men were not meant for marriage at all. There's an atavistic thing in them, a strutting sort of insolence that goes back to plumes and sabers and knights riding alone. The woman who innocently lures a McFarlane man into marriage destroys him. I destroyed Richard, and Sandra will wreck Ric."

Sandra Puts On An Act

"More fantastic nonsense!" growled Dave, getting out his wallet before the lighted ticket window. "You may have changed Richard's direction, but you didn't destroy him. What was in him would have worked the same destruction anyway. Well, let's see what sort of pale imitation of the real thing Hollywood has to offer."

Jill dragged her feet upstairs wearily. She had worked hard that day, tiring herself to exhaustion, forcing her young body, handicapped by the broken arm, to tasks that she had never known before, because the need was so great now that the man-power shortage had moved in on Buzzard's Hill, and because when every bone and muscle screamed with weariness, she could sleep, she would be too tired to think.

In one day life in the old house had abruptly stiffened to this horrible, watchful formality.

Why had Sandra come to Buzzard's Hill? She must have hated coming, being pushed off in a state of dependence, among strangers, yet she had come. And undoubtedly, Jill decided, Sandra was a resourceful creature.

Did she believe that when the war was over, Buzzard's Hill would belong to Ric, and that the others would be brushed off casually, that she would step into the comfort and security that Dooley had worked so hard for years to win for them all?

"I'd kill her first!" Jill thought angrily. "I'd strangle her with my bare hands!"

She kicked off the beige pajamas, and got into the tub and lay there, soaking in the comforting hot water, letting her mind drift off blankly. The radio was playing in Ric's room, some jive thing. Sandra had come up as soon as Dave went away, bored with Jill and drowsy old John I., giving them only the curtest of good nights.

Overhead Jill heard a plane flying, slowly, circling over the town. The beat of the motors was low and near, and she sprang out of the tub and wrapped herself in a towel and crouched at the window to glimpse the skimming lights, the shadow of fleet wings against the purple night sky. That was Spang's sky up there, Spang's "wild blue yonder," the hollow, secret, endless roadway that Spang was traveling so happily now.

Awkwardly she scrubbed herself dry, wriggled into a night gown, slipping her arm back into the sling, aware of Sandra, standing in the door, watching her.

"Funny thing," Jill was thinking as she looked at the reflection of Sandra in the mirror, "no matter how much she dresses up you always feel that somehow she isn't quite clean." Aloud she said, "Hello, Sandra. What's on your mind? Is your room all right?"

Sandra came into the room, perched on the end of the chaise longue, draping all the flounces gracefully about her legs.

"It's all right," she said, grudgingly, "but awfully lonely! You don't know about missing a man so much it makes you ill, Jill. You couldn't."

"Oh, couldn't I?" Jill thought, angrily. But she kept her voice casual and her face controlled, as she went on brushing. "It is sort of tough to have your bridegroom snatched away from you, isn't it? But you must have known that something like that would happen. You'd been married to a soldier before."

Sandra's teeth clicked. "It needn't have happened. It was all done for spite by an officer who hates me. He contrived to have Ricky sent away. We had forty-eight hours! Forty-eight hours of each other, and then there I was—alone!"

"But of course you were more or less used to being alone. The adjustment wasn't quite as difficult as though you'd been with Ric for months or maybe years."

"You don't know anything about love," Sandra remarked. "You don't know what torture it was, seeing him go! All I could do was stand there at that gate and watch him trudging away, looking back to wave at me. . . ." She began to cry, carefully dabbing away every tear, her mouth twitching.

Words Between Two Girls

"If Ric hadn't had a home for you to come to, it would have been bad, wouldn't it?" Jill kept her eyes on the mirror, catching glimpses of Sandra over her shoulder. "Just what would you have done, anyway?"

"I don't know. I'd have had to do something—try to follow Ricky, I suppose."

"Or perhaps," Jill was cool, "you wouldn't have married him at all? You're a smart woman, Sandra. Somehow I can't see you marrying a boy—even one so attractive as Ric, just on an impulse."

"I suppose you're trying to say, without being nasty about it, that I married Ricky because I thought your family had money?" Sandra said viciously. "I wasn't thinking about his family when I married him. I was only thinking that at last I loved a man who loved me and that we had something beautiful that we mustn't lose!"

"And now," said Jill, a deadly coolness smooth as glass in her voice, "you've lost your idyllic love and got a lot of stogy in-laws instead. Tough break!"

"It's quite all right." Sandra studied her nails. "I knew how it would be before I came. Ricky warned me. He told me that you were very possessive, Jill, that you thought you had a private mother, and that he had always been made to feel like an outsider in his own home."

Jill lifted her eyebrows. "Ric's really wonderful when he sounds off, isn't he? If you didn't know him awfully well you might believe every word of it. You'd almost believe that his home was a place he really cared about, not just an address to write to when he needed a check."

"You don't know very much about your brother, do you?" Sandra was cool, too.

OBJECTIVES IN MOSCOW

WASHINGTON. — As a military man, General Marshall planned two great offensives. One was in 1918 when he charted for General Pershing the transfer of one million men from St. Mihiel to the Meuse-Argonne front, plus 40,000 tons of ammunition, 34 hospitals, 93,000 horses, 164 miles of railway and 87 depots—all in a week's time with no enemy aviator discovering it.

The other was in the last war when as chief of staff he planned the historic landing on Normandy.

These two offensives, great as they were, in some respects are not as difficult as the two great peace-time objectives which George Marshall as secretary of state is attempting to win at the conference in Moscow. Those two objectives are:

1. A permanent peace treaty with the nation which has caused every major European war in the past century—Germany.

2. The end of our present suspicious, chip-on-the-shoulder relations with Russia and establishment of a permanent friendship with the nation which can be our most disastrous enemy.

Both, obviously are interdependent. And if Marshall can win real friendship with Russia, the treaty with Germany will be much easier to perfect.

LESSON FROM LATIN AMERICA

One of the great lessons learned from our Pan-American relations is the importance of teamwork. Prior to the good-neighbor policy we worked as an individual nation. We landed troops in Haiti, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic. We banged Mexico over the head with diplomatic threats and mobilized troops on her border. Result: All Latin America disliked us.

Then Sumner Welles sold Roosevelt the idea of being a good neighbor, of sharing responsibility. So when trouble arose in the western hemisphere, the Pan-American nations solved it as a team. Result: Fewer mistakes were made and when they were made Uncle Sam didn't get all the blame.

The British empire hitherto has operated on a unit basis. It didn't worry about teamwork. Result: It is hurriedly liquidating parts of the empire and reaping bitter criticism in Palestine and Greece. Further result: The United States is asked to share the financial responsibilities—and the headaches—in one of those countries without having too much to say about the things that cause the headaches.

If we become the bankers for British headaches, the pain and the blame can extend to Turkey, Italy, North Africa and all over the world. That's why we should take a leaf from the Pan-American good-neighbor book and let the United Nations get busy in Greece before it is too late.

DEFLATED DREAM

Most interesting, though somewhat deflated political figure in the senate today is Robert A. Taft of Ohio, together with the question: Will he achieve his long-cherished dream of following the footsteps of his father up the front steps of the White House as President of the United States?

Not since 1940, when energetic, progressive Wendell Willkie stole the Republican nomination from under Taft's nose, has he forgotten for a minute his ambition to duplicate the father-son presidential success of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Viewing the 1940 Philadelphia convention in retrospect—after the trouncing FDR handed Willkie—Taft was not too unhappy about it. In 1944 he realized that FDR could not be stopped, and he was glad to let Tom Dewey and his Ohio GOP colleague John Bricker "take the rap." The big chance for the Republican party, Taft figured, would come after the war.

The results of last November's congressional elections definitely convinced Taft that he was right. The next two years held his big chance for the presidency. After 1948 it might be too late. He has played his cards accordingly.

Taft immediately put himself at the head of the Republican party as far as Capitol Hill was concerned. At first, Taft was riding high, wide and handsome. Today, his reins are trailing in the dust. He is scarcely riding at all. And what is especially depressing is that Taft's reverses have come not from Democrats but from his own forces which he assumed to lead.

UNDER THE DOME

Few people know it but a tight Truman triumvirate—Hannegan, Secretary of the Interior Krug and Attorney General Clark—has ironed out a lot of inner cabinet wrangles.

Two women clutching passes to the senators' gallery asked the doorkeeper: "Is this where you go in to see the senators perform?"

Now that he has left the RFC, George Allen is really expanding his business holdings. He even owns one per cent of the Broadway hit, "Born Yesterday."

Homemade Soap

Waste fat from cooking, fat rendered from tallow or meat trimmings and hardened vegetable shortenings may be used for homemade soap.

Chesterfield of Birds

The Chesterfield of birds is the great blue heron. To his middle claw is attached a small comb, with which to preen his feathers.

Caribous Vanishing

The last woodland caribou in Maine was seen in 1908. There are now 15 in northern Minnesota, only two of which are natives.

Plentiful Minerals

The supply of nitrogen, magnesium, and salt are as limitless as the sea and air from which they are drawn.

Glass Tubing

More than 800 miles of glass tubing, enough for a million fluorescent lamps, is produced each month by a single electrical manufacturer.

Eat More Turkey

Consumption of turkey meat averaged about two pounds per person in 1932-34, but jumped to 4½ pounds in 1945 and 1946.

Forest Fires

Two hundred thousand forest fires every year burn over 31 million acres, an area as large as New York state.

Down Like a Feather

A new electric control system for lowering cargo to docks can bring a five-ton load to a jarrish stop from a drop of 150 feet a minute.

Near-Perfection Rejected

Tungsten filaments 99.44 per cent pure are rejected in the manufacture of light bulbs. The rating must be at least 99.99 per cent.

Atomic Diagnosis

Breast cancer can be diagnosed in many cases through atomic medicine, doctors in the University of California medical school report.

Dangerous Surfaces

Sixty-five per cent of all traffic accidents in snow-belt states during last winter occurred on snow and icy road surfaces.

Exclusive U. S. Industry

Production of cultivated cranberries, now a $10,000,000 business, is a farming enterprise confined almost exclusively to the United States.

NEW DISCOVERY IN A HEARING AID

A big improvement has been made in a hearing aid now welcomed by thousands. It is a new hearing aid that does not require separate battery pack, battery wire, battery case or garment to bulge and weigh you down. So small it fits in your hand. The tone is clear and powerful. So made that you can adjust it yourself to suit your hearing as your hearing changes. We are so proud of this achievement that we will gladly send free descriptive booklet and explain how you may get a free demonstration of this remarkable instrument in your home without risking a penny. WISCONSIN NEEDS MORE MALTING BARLEY; A PROFITABLE CASH GRAIN CROP

In 1938-1940 the average production of barley in Wisconsin was about 24 million bushels. In 1946 the Wisconsin barley crop was 4,650,000 bushels, harvested from 124,000 acres. The goal for 1947 is 250,000 acres. On March 15, 1947, the price of No. 1 malting barley on the Milwaukee Grain Exchange was $1.95 per bushel. On the same date the top price of feed barley was $1.50. No. 1 oats on the same date sold for $1.00.

Influenza Warning By Will Co. Officers

Dr. Cecil A. Z. Sharp, county health officer, has issued a warning

ORLAND PARK

The Orland Home Bureau met last

Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Katherine Ihlenfeld. The meeting was called to order by the chairman and due to the absence of the secretary, roll call was read by the vice chairman Florence Sayers. Following the business meeting Mrs. Harvey Emerson gave the Major lesson, "Laudering Colored Clothes and Synthetics," which proved to be very interesting.

The minor lesson a "4H Club Report", was given by Mrs. Ihlenfeld. Mrs. Emerson was in charge of recreation and the group played a thrilling "O Johnny" guessing game for which a novel prize was awarded.

Delicious refreshments were served by the committee, Olive Emerson and Anna Graf.

The first meeting of the Orland Girls 4-H Club was held in the home of Phyllis and Marilyn Yunker in Mokena. Election of officers was held as follows: president, Oralse Bochmann; vice president, Betty Schuldt; secretary, Marjorie Yunker; recreation chairman, Doloris Blume and Elaine Schuldt. Betty Schuldt joined the club. After the meeting, games were played and refreshments were served by Mrs. Yunker. —Phyllis Yunker, Reporter

WE DELIVER

A Message To Mother!

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE AFTER A HARD DAY OF WASHING?
DO YOUR HANDS GET ROUGH AND DRY FROM HAVING THEM IN WATER?
DO YOU HAVE THE DAILY CHORE OF WASHING DIAPERS?
ARE YOU SURE, DOUBLY SURE, THAT THE WAY YOU NOW WASH IS SANITARY AND SAFE?
ARE YOU ILL SO THAT WASHING IS A BURDEN TO YOU?
DOES THE WRINGER BREAK BUTTONS AND BEND OVERALL BUCKLES?
IS THERE ANY CHANCE OF YOU OR YOUR CHILDREN GETTING HURT IN THE WRINGER?

Are there any other reasons why you dislike the old fashioned way of washing, like carrying water, lifting heavy water-soaked clothes, rinsing in tubs, getting wet, cleaning the washer and tubs when you are through and mopping up the floor?

If the answer to any of the above questions is yes, then perhaps a new way of washing will solve your problems. Would you like to have your clothes cleaned without you having to do any work or even getting your hands wet?

There is a new machine that is modern and effective in getting your clothes clean without work, all you do is put in the dry dirty clothes, set the dial, add soap and then go about your housework, your shopping, or to the movies. When the washing is done the machine stops and the clothes will have been washed, rinsed and damp dried, automatically, ready for the line.

So you don't think anything as good as this can be true? Well you can prove it to yourself by telephoning Orland Park 136J1 and this is what we will tell you. "We have a new automatic Laundry ready for you to use. We will furnish the soap and the hot water. All you need to do is bring over your dirty clothes, watch the machine do the work and then take them home clean and damp dried ready to hang up."

This offer is made to acquaint you with the new modern way to do your family washing without fuss or bother. Of course there is no obligation and no one will try to sell you anything. All we would like you to do is to tell us when it is convenient for you to come.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mrs. Henry Stellwagon wishes to announce that she is an authorized Stayform dealer. Stayform is a stayless foundation garment. I will be happy to make an appointment at any time in your home or at 513, 4th Ave., Joliet, Illinois.—Advertisement.

Good Friday services will be held from 12 noon to 3 o'clock in the Methodist church with the Frankfort Evangelical-Reformed church co-operating. The Rev. George Fuchs of Manhattan, the Rev. Carl Schrupp of Peotone; the Rev. J. Frank Anderson of Tinley Park, the Rev. Harold Olson of Joliet; the Rev. Erich Bizer, and the Rev. Lloyd Coleman of Frankfort are to be participating ministers. Special music will be furnished by the Evangelical church of Frankfort and the Green Garden Methodist church.

Wednesday afternoon the Women's Guild of St. Peter's church met for its monthly meeting. Mrs. Lulu Breidert conducted the worship devotionals. Mrs. Leo Peterson, Mrs. Leroy Hansen, Mrs. Orval Schroeder, Mrs. Roy Koerner and Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaugen had charge of Christian study department. Chairman of the serving committee was Mrs. Stanley Johnson. Others serving were Mesdames Alvin Harnack, Charles Heusner, W. V. Hedges; Herbert Hilgendorf, George Elsner, Robert Hohenstein; Hilda Lambricht; William Koerner, Norman Krumwieda; Clara Kohlhaugen; Hy Gauthier, Jr. Art Gauthier; Harry Harka, William Hanson; Vernon Hanson; Matilda Harnack, Elizabeth Feil and Carl Barlow. A roast beef supper was served after which Lenten services were conducted.

Second House Warming

Sunday evening, March 23, the Burton Breidert's home was the scene of another house warming when the maternal relatives of the family gathered at their home, bringing with them a covered-dish dinner. Assisting Mrs. Breidert in receiving were the mothers Mrs. Fred Heusner and Mrs. Henry Breidert. Guests for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Adam Heusner of Frankfort, and children Warren and Jeanette of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Monk, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clark of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Wendel Morrison; Mrs. Matilda Stork, Mrs. Ralph Beaver, Mrs. Anna Kurtz, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bettenhausen and family all of Peotone. The Ernest Pfeiffer's, the Harlow Jensen's, and Mr. and Mrs. Len Warning and sons of New Lenox. Also Fred Heusner and Henry Breidert fathers, Mr. and Mrs. William Wischover, Rev. and Mrs. Bizer, and Miss Viola Lankenau all of Frankfort.

The table decorations were carried out in Easter appointments. Movies were shown by Burton Breidert of pictures he had taken of Michigan, Wisconsin and Canadian scenery as well as family pictures. A midnight lunch was served. A large mirror was presented to the Breidert's by the group.

April 25 is the date set for a card party sponsored by the RNA to be held in the village hall to which everyone is invited.

Conrad Mark and sons Walter and Conrad, Jr., attended a father and son banquet sponsored by the Masonic lodge at Edison Park, March 14. There were 300 in attendance. While there they met many of their friends, having lived there before coming to Frankfort.

Mrs. Claude Otto has returned to her home with her baby girl, Martha Jane from Silver Cross hospital, Joliet.

Mrs. Albert Krusemark, Jr. came home with her daughter from Women's and Children's hospital, Chicago.

Mrs. Harold Johnson of Joliet has been spending some time at the home of her brother and family, the Herbert Folkers, helping care for her father, Frank G. Folkers, who died last Saturday. Mr. Johnson is also ill in a hospital in Cleveland, Ohio.

There will be a card party given by the PTA of District 153 Green Garden tomorrow (Saturday) evening, March 29, instead of Friday evening, as has been the custom. All games will be played, prizes awarded, with a full evening's enjoyment and there will also be good "eats."

Mrs. Rolland Knippel and sons entertained at a birthday Sunday, March 23, at their home, honoring Mr. Knippel. Dinner was served at 5 o'clock at a large table centered with a beautiful birthday cake. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Knippel, parents; Mrs. Emma Gillette, aunt; also

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Schiek, and family of Mokena, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marshall and Mrs. Carl Caneva and children of Lockport. A pleasant time was enjoyed.

The Rev. Coleman officiated at the baptismal service of Delores and Paul Mahnke, foster children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bettenhausen in their home Sunday afternoon.

The Frankfort Methodist Youth Fellowship presented "Books of Worship and Prayer," to be placed in the pews. Last Sunday Miss Wilma Mark made the presentation speech at the morning service and the Rev. Lloyd Coleman responded and accepted them.

The congregation expresses its appreciation to the young people, who were responsible for this fine gift.

On Palm Sunday, morning worship in the Frankfort church at the usual hour. In the Green Garden church, a confirmation service will be held with the following young people being confirmed into the membership of the Methodist church:—Caroline Krapf, Carol Jean Wanner, Bernice Beckman, Max McKinzie, Dean McKinzie, Lois Andres; Kenneth Andres; Leslie Kopman; and Barbara Coleman. There will be reception of members for adults also.

Communion services will be held in the Green Garden church on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock and in the Frankfort church Thursday evening, at 7:30, April 2 and 3 respectively.

Frankfort Methodist Youth Fellowship will sponsor an Easter sunrise service at 6:30 and breakfast at 7 o'clock. This is open to everyone. Morning worship with baptisms and reception of members in Frankfort at 9:30 a. m.; Easter services at 10:45 in Green Garden. Sunday school as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hansen and daughters Gail and JoAnn of Davenport, Iowa and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hansen of Elwood were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hansen recently.

Last week the Will county home bureau members went to Chicago to view the annual national flower show at Chicago's International amphitheatre. Those of Joliet chartered buses, while those from Eastern Will county went in their own cars. Those attending from the Frankfort-Mokena unit were: Mrs. William Fair and daughter, Mrs. George Elsner Mrs. Robert Proctor, and Mrs. Harry Miller. From the Busy Homemakers unit of Green Garden: Mrs. Ray Walsh, Mrs. Joe Scott and Mrs. Clarence Lehnert. The rose exhibit attracted interest among the Will countians, especially the display of new roses developed in recent years. Double cyclamen plants flown from Holland for the show added to the unusual features seen for the first time by many visitors from Will county.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Vollrath of Chicago and Miss Betty Vollrath were weekend guests in the Edw. Vollrath home.

The regular meeting of the Frankfort RNA will not be held on the 1st Friday or April 4, but will be held a week later, April 11 due to Good Friday falling on April 4. Members please note the change.

1. TURN IN old, burned-out and wrong-sized light bulbs.
2. TAKE a heaping portion of bright new light bulbs in exchange.
3. MIX WELL into every room where your family reads, works, eats or plays.
4. ALLOW TIME for normal activities about the house after the family comes home tired that evening.
5. ENJOY their fresh zest for living with a brighter, cheerier home!

CHECK

the lighting in your home today! You'll find many little unthought-of reasons for dad's tired eyes : : : junior's distaste for homework : : : and sister's reluctance to sew on that new dress she's making. Empty sockets, wrong-sized and burned-out bulbs play no favorites—they rob every member of the family of adequate light. Make sure today that every socket in your home is filled with the proper-sized bulb. A home filled with warm, cheerful light makes the evening hours —when the family is free to relax and enjoy leisure hours together—the most pleasant part of the day.

Rufe's Ramblings
By Rufe Pickett

I was hind brakeman on the freight—the "down freight", everybody along the line called it in order to indicate the direction. We were ready to leave town. I climbed up and knocked off a couple of brakes and dropped off with the intention of catching the caboose when it came along. My intentions were all right, but so was the raw-hide string onto which my switch key dangled from my belt, and since I wasn't to be able to get back onto the box car which was towing me along, I did the next best thing under such circumstances—ran along beside the train.

I hadn't run more than five miles till I realized I had made a mistake in carrying my key in such a manner that the string might wrap around a grab iron, and when we pulled into the next station I literally promised the group around the depot that I intended to work for the Windy Mountain & Eastern the rest of my natural life—at least I had no intentions of ever going to any line which had engines that would go a hundred miles or so without stopping for coal and water.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 23, was:

"MATTER"

The Golden Text was:

"Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth" (Colossians 3: 2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. . . . Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his counsellor hath taught him? . . . Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance: behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing. . . . All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity" (Isa. 40: 10, 13, 15, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

Home Bureau News

The new officers took over their duties at the March meeting of the Bremen Home Bureau in the home of Mrs. Joseph Gallena. Mrs. Herman Gee, the retiring president turned over the meeting to the new chairman, Mrs. Lumbert who introduced her new officers, Mrs. Willis Guth, vice chairman; Mrs. Harding, Secretary; Mrs. Earl Siensen and Mrs. Joe Gallena, 4-H co-chairmen.

Mrs. Harding gave a profitable lesson on Home Bureau. Mrs. R. E. Johnson was welcomed as a new member and Mrs. McCarthy is a new associate member. Mrs. St. George was a visitor as was Mrs. Ebert, former Will county 4H leader.

Any other visitors, along with members will be very welcome at the April meeting at the home of Mrs. Willis Guth. The Home advisor will give the report on Landscaping.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hansen, daughter and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde H. Huntley of Tinley Park, are the parents of a son born March 15 at Mercy hospital. The baby weighed 9 pounds 2 ounces. He has been named Laurance Joseph Hansen.

Mr. Harry Utte's condition is satisfactory after undergoing a major operation last week in Ingalls hospital.

Lynn Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roberts, celebrated her eighth birthday last Saturday at a party in her home. Her little guests were: Jacqueline Panizzo, Patsy Cupp, Evelyn and Lucille Brandau, Nancy O'Neill; Mary Ann Ficker; Diane Cupp; Jean Hodgkins, Evelyn Brown, and Sharon Andrew of Joliet. Lynn received many lovely gifts. Games were played during the afternoon and a delicious luncheon was served from a table centered with a beautifully decorated birthday cake. Each guest received a favor.

Cyril Radcliffe of Mancke & Radcliffe has returned from the hospital and is recuperating in his home from a recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Swanson of Tinley Park were guests of the George Merriks in Mokena last Sunday.

Miss Efrida Willman has returned to Blackburn College, Carlinville, Illinois after spending spring vacation at home.

House Committee Leaders Average 17 Years' Service

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles dealing with new congressional committees and their chairmen.)

By WALTER A. SHEAD
WNU Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Although Republican legislators were relegated to the background during the past 15 years of Democratic ascendancy, the 17 G.O.P. representatives who now head the house committees under the reorganization act have a long record of service in congress.

The 17 committee chairmen, a survey reveals, have served in congress for an average of 17 years. Veteran legislator of the group is Cong. Harold Knutson of Minnesota, who has served in the lower house for 30 years. His service has embraced two wars as he was first elected to congress in 1917.

Committee chairman with the least tenure is Cong. Fred Bradley of Michigan, whose service has been limited to eight years.

The list of house committee chairmen continues:

Agriculture

CLIFFORD R. HOPE (KAS.), new chairman of the agriculture committee, promises a bi-partisan approach to farm problems on an economic rather than a political basis. He advocates an agricultural program for soil conservation, marketing research, rural electrification, farm-to-market roads, reduction of farm tenancy and revision of the farm parity price formula to bring it up to date and to include labor costs. In addition to the more traditional supports for farm prices and markets, Hope emphasizes higher dietary standards brought about by better nutrition education and continuing high industrial employment.

Hope, a 53-year-old lawyer, was born in Iowa but has lived in Finney County, Kas., since 1906. He is a member of a Garden City, Kas., law firm. After army service in World War I, Hope was elected to the Kansas house of representatives in 1920 and was made speaker in 1925. He was elected to congress in 1926 and has been re-elected regularly.

The fifth Kansas district, which Hope represents, sprawls over 33 counties in the southwestern part of the state. Its 1940 population was 296,118. In the heart of the country's breadbasket, the fifth district is overwhelmingly rural and agricultural.

On non-agricultural matters, Hope generally votes with the majority of his Republican colleagues. On agricultural bills, he voted against the agricultural adjustment act in 1933, for the soil conservation act in 1936, for wheat crop insurance in 1938 and for including farm costs in parity prices in 1942.

Executive Department Expenditures

CLARE E. HOFFMAN (MICH.), new chairman of the committee on expenditures in the executive department, is one of six Republicans in the house who voted with the majority of their party 100 per cent of the time on controversial roll calls in closing months of the 79th congress.

Not normally important, the committee which he now takes over sometimes comes into the limelight, as when it handled the full employment bill in 1945-46. Hoffman vigorously opposed this bill, even in the compromise version which finally passed the house by a vote of 320 to 84. The expenditures committee also has been given jurisdiction over surplus property legislation. Otherwise, the committee's most important jurisdiction is over government reorganization. In this field, Hoffman voted to recommit the government reorganization bill in 1938 and to recommend the later reorganization bill in 1945.

Hoffman was born 71 years ago in Pennsylvania, went to law school at Northwestern university and later moved to Michigan, where he now lives in the town of Allegan. He has been in the house since 1935.

Hoffman's district is made up of six counties in the southwestern part of the state. Its 1940 population was 242,339. The district is predominantly rural and agricultural. Small industrial enterprises exist in quarrying, glass, pottery and machinery. Labor organizations, especially the CIO, have increased their membership there in the last few years but are not a significant power politically. Hoffman has introduced a number of labor bills which are strongly opposed by organized labor.

Hope

Foreign Affairs

CHARLES A. EATON (N. J.), new chairman of the foreign affairs committee, usually follows Republican party policy on domestic matters and the Vandenberg line on foreign affairs.

Eaton was a delegate to the United Nations conference in San Francisco and an alternate delegate to the general assembly in London. He voted for the United Nations implementation bill in 1945, and for the loan to Britain in 1946. He also voted for the amendment to the UNRRA appropriation in 1945 prohibiting use of the funds in countries denying freedom to American press correspondents.

Eaton, who has been in congress since 1925, was born in Nova Scotia 79 years ago and spent most of his early life in Canada. He is an ordained Baptist minister and has held pastorates in Toronto, Cleveland and New York.

Concurrently he worked as a newspaperman, serving as Canadian correspondent of the old New York Tribune and Boston Transcript and as special correspondent of the London Times. He also has specialized in industrial relations and for a time was head of the industrial relations department of the National Lamp Works, General Electric company.

The fifth New Jersey district, which Eaton represents, is in the north central part of the state and is predominantly industrial and residential. A considerable part of its population (329,305 in 1940) commutes to work in New York City. Both the CIO and AFL are well organized in the district, and National Association of Manufacturers and chamber of commerce also have substantial membership.

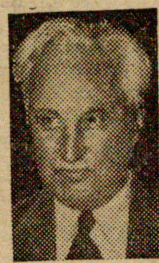

EDITH NOURSE ROGERS (MASS.), chairman of the new committee on veterans' affairs, is especially interested in disabled veterans, but in general she is sympathetic with most of the aims of major veterans' organizations.

The new committee takes over functions of the old committees on pensions, invalid pensions and World War veterans' legislation. Mrs. Rogers' primary purpose in the new committee, she said recently, is to rework the entire body of existing law on veterans' pensions, disability compensation and life insurance so as to remove the inequities which have arisen under it as a result of its piecemeal growth.

Mrs. Rogers, 65 years old, is a former social service administrator who served in Europe in the Red Cross in World War I. She was first elected to congress in 1925 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her husband. During the 1920s also she served as the personal representative of Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover in the care of disabled veterans.

On controversial matters, Mrs. Rogers votes with the majority of her Republican colleagues about two-thirds of the time and deserts them to side with the Democrats about one-third of the time. On almost the only controversial veterans' matter to come before congress in 20 years, Mrs. Rogers voted against overriding the soldiers bonus veto in 1936.

The fifth Massachusetts district, which Mrs. Rogers represents, includes parts of Essex and Middlesex counties bordering the Boston metropolitan area. It has some small farms, but is primarily residential. There is little industry except in the city of Lowell which has a concentration of textile mills. Organized labor has little strength in the district outside of Lowell. The district's population in 1940 was 336,642. It has long been considered safely Republican.

Crop Yield Doubled By Soil Treatment

Two Applications Have Decided Advantages

Although the Corn Belt states produce nearly 60 per cent of the nation's food, crop yields in this area average only about half of what they could be if the soils were provided with enough raw materials such as lime and fertilizer elements, according to Prof. Emil Truog, head of the soils department of University of Wisconsin.

On most of the soils of the Corn Belt, a heavy initial application of fertilizer and lime is needed right now to make up the deficit of available nutrients in the soil, he declared. This deficit, he said, always has existed in the poorer soils and has been created through exhaustive cropping on many of the better soils.

Truog pointed out that "heavy application of fertilizer" means in many cases the use of four to five tons of lime and the equivalent of 1,500 pounds of 0-20-20 fertilizer per acre.

Tests in Wisconsin, he added, have proved the value of such heavy initial soil treatments. Thereafter, maintenance applications are made.

In following this system, half of the fertilizer is applied and disked in before plowing. The other half is spread and disked in after plowing. Thus the whole plow layer is uniformly treated from top to bottom, creating a much better condition for crop production than when the fertilizer is applied in one dose and not thoroughly incorporated with the soil for five or six years afterward.

Farm Milk Cart

This milk cart was fabricated of channel iron, one-inch angle iron, a length of 3/4 inch pipe and front wheels from a lightweight car.

General method of construction of framework is shown in above sketch. Location of welds also is indicated. Other shapes, if more readily available, can be substituted for the one shown.

Topping Vegetables Saves Food Values

Root vegetables—carrots, turnips, beets, parsnips, radishes—will be fresher and have more food value if you trim off their tops before storing them in the refrigerator or vegetable bin. And they will take less storage space.

Although the tops of these vegetables make them appear more attractive in the grocery stores, off with them, say plant scientists of the department of agriculture, for the tops draw nutrients and moisture from the vegetable.

Plant scientists point out that while the vegetable is growing in the ground, the leaves or tops manufacture sugar, starch, protein and other foods which go down into the roots for storage. But when the vegetable is taken from the earth, the situation is reversed and the tops draw on the foods stored in the roots.

Young tender root vegetables will keep better in the vegetable compartment of the refrigerator than in an open bin in the kitchen because the warm air soon dries and wilts the vegetables.

Crops Grown Without Soil Require Skill

Hydroponics or chemical farming has been successfully carried out on large and small scales, but only by those who have a working knowledge of plant chemistry. Poorly tended cultures—the iron, fertilizer salts, nitrate of soda, potassium sulfate, gypsum, epsom salts and other elements—must be added to the water to meet the plant's need. It should be started on a small scale, as a hobby.

Keep an old tooth brush in your sewing box. The next time you have to rip out seams with a razor blade, use the tooth brush to brush off little threads along seams.

Good knives are a housewife's helpers, so you'll want to take good care of yours. Keep them away from the stove, because heat destroys the temper of steel. If this happens the blade cannot be kept sharp.

Slip a convenient-sized oiled silk bag into your purse just before you go out to buy fish. Have the fish dealer slip the fish into this before wrapping it. On the way home no fish odors will escape the package, and there'll be less chance of liquid leaking on your clothes.

Meshed is the holy city of Iran where all objects with any sacred significance are revered by the inhabitants and the 100,000 Moslem pilgrims who visit it annually. Yet for a generation, its sidewalks have been paved with old tombstones—from a reconverted cemetery—placed with their inscriptions upward.

END LAXATIVE HABIT THIS EASY WAY!

Millions Now Take Healthful Fresh Fruit Drink—Find Harsh Laxatives Unnecessary

It's lemon and water. Yes—just the juice of 1 Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water—first thing on arising.

Taken first thing in the morning, this wholesome drink stimulates bowel action in a natural way—assures most people of prompt, normal elimination.

Why not change to this healthful habit? Lemon and water is good for you. Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps you resist colds and infections. They also supply B₁ and P. They alkalize, aid appetite and digestion. Lemon and water has a fresh tang, too—clears the mouth, wakes you up!

Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you! Use California Sunkist Lemons.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Apple Tree Versus Wheat Field

If you ever visit Jeb Crowell's farm, he'll take you right out on that back porch of his and show you his apple tree.

"There," says Jeb, "is nature's noblest creation—fifty years, and bearin' still the finest cider apples in the county!"

But last fall, when a group of us was there, Lud Denny points across the river to his grain fields and says: "There's an even finer sight! Acres and acres of golden grain you can make dozens of appetizing things with—including wholesome, sparkling beer."

Both of them got so eloquent on the subject, that the rest of us worked up quite a thirst; so Jeb goes to the icebox for beer and cider. And when the refreshments come, Lud chooses cider, and Jeb takes the beer!

From where I sit, that's the answer to most disputes. You can talk all you want, but when it comes to tastes and preferences, there's just no argument.

"MAGNETIC HEART"

THAT PROVIDES
UNIFORM MILKING!

Uniform milking . . . without change from one milking to the next . . . is necessary to highest milk production levels. Variations and changes in milking speed and action in machine milking cause loss of production . . . exactly as when hand milkers are changed. Only the De Laval Magnetic Speedway Milker with the famous "Magnetic Heart" . . . which controls pulsations for each unit from the Pulsio-Pump magnetically . . . assures that your cows will always be milked in the same correct, uniform and regular manner day after day. And that means highest, uniform milk yield!
